This being the last issue of 2008, we have tried to give maximum coverage to the events and activities organized by various departments in UMT, over the last couple of months. These included lectures, seminars, workshops, sports, and student activities, culminating in the 3rd Convocation

December 31, 2008 marked an important day for graduating students of the University of Management and Technology, Lahore. The day was a celebration of success, much of which rested on the people who make up the UMT community - students, faculty, staff, parents, academic council and UMT Board of Trustees.

UMT is a radiant example of the success that results from honesty, dedication, hard-work and purity of cause. The UMT community takes great pride in the fact that its worthy Rector, Dr Hasan Sohaib Murad, has played a key role in initiating and enabling the transformation of ILM to UMT. The last eighteen years have seen the institution grow steadily to its current stature and today it boasts of ranking among the leading universities in the country. We have a world class faculty and we offer facilities for teaching and learning that are second to none. Our students should be confident in the knowledge that they are getting 'the best' from the best'. We take pride in having been part of the splendid rare occasion of awarding medals to 40 outstanding students, and degrees to 633 graduating students.

UMT provides education, which is beyond 'just academic knowledge'. The institution supports intellectual and personal growth of students, preparing them to become transformational leaders and citizens with sound sense of ethical values.

Convocation is the high point in the life of every student. It marks their academic achievement when they are awarded degrees in the presence of their teachers, and their proud parents. It is also a point in their lives when they enter the real world of challenges. Our graduates are our pride. In this issue, we have dedicated the center-fold to the 3rd Convocation. Selected pictures convey the somber and dignified ambience of the event.

Besides imparting knowledge and skills to its students, another important role of an educational institution is to develop them as well-rounded individuals. In this regard, UMT offers ample opportunities to its students to acquire confidence, competitiveness, and team spirit through participation in sports competitions. Lessons of team spirit and cooperation are best learnt on the playgrounds, and these are some of the ingredients for success in life.

The Office of Participants Affairs (OPA) has played an important role in promoting sports in UMT. Their efforts deserve to be commended. Besides organizing sporting events, they also motivate and encourage students to participate in these events, and provide proper coaching to them. A definite plus point is that the cost of most of these events is met through sponsorships, hence there is no financial burden upon UMT. The man behind the success of OPA is no other than Rana Ifikhar Ahmad, who has been organizing many activities and events since the very early days when UMT was still ILM. In December 2008, OPA held a 'Well Done – An Achievenent Evening' to honor the winners and participants of the various extra-curricular activities held over the year. Three departments, namely, Office of Facilities Management (OFM), Office of Information Technology (OIT), and Office of Communications and Media (OCM), were also presented the 'Well Done' award for their support and cooperation to OPA.

Finally, we are well into the Spring 2009 admissions campaign with the Office of Admissions team working in overdrive mode. The student intake has been steadily increasing over the last couple of years as word about UMT gets around that it is one of the top universities in Lahore in all respects. Much of this success has been achieved due to the commissioning of our new campus in 2007, the solid reputation of our outstanding faculty, job placements of our graduates in reputed organizations, our advertising effort and exposure gained through participation in educational exhibitions, and above all the able guidance of our worthy Rector, Dr Hasan Sohaib Murad.

UMT News team hopes that our readers enjoy going through the pages of this issue, although it has appeared late due to unavoidable circumstances. We are working towards streamlining the flow of information to us concerning departmental/school activities for publishing, and to this effect we have approached the Department of Media and Communication in the School of Social Sciences and Humanities, to nominate some students with good written communication skills to cover the various important events and activities taking place in UMT from time to time. Once this arrangement is in place, we hope that our reporting standards would improve further.

Happy reading, and a very happy new year to our readers.

World Usability Day

The World Usability Day was celebrated for the first time in Pakistan on November 13, 2008. World Usability Day (www.worldusabilityday.org) was founded in 2005 as an initiative of the Usability Professionals' Association to ensure that services and products important to human life are easier to access and simpler to use. Organized by the Interaction Design Center (www.ixdc.org) at UMT, the celebration coincided with a globally-coordinated effort with similar events taking place simultaneously in 170 cities and 45 countries across the world. The event in Lahore was an initiative of Imran Hussain, Director IxDC and a User Experience Consultant, who was assisted by Adnan Ali (IxDC/UMT) and others in organizing the event. The World Usability Day was celebrated in collaboration with Google, Octara and Obscure. Media Partners included City 42, City FM 89, The Nation, and Rightmoves. Knowledge Partners included TCS and Learning Resource Development Center.

The event in Lahore attracted over two hundred participants from all walks of life who came together on a busy working day to discuss usability and experience design. They were treated to views and ideas from an assortment of speakers belonging to various organizations and industrial sectors. The theme for the international event this year was transportation. The speakers talked about the design of transport safety and security, modes of transportation, transportation infrastructure, informaKhushnood, Google Pakistan Country Consultant, played a critical role in arranging this collaboration with Google India. The keynote speech was given by Ehtsham Rao, Director of IT Strategy and Innovation at Mobilink. Ehtsham discussed the possibility of introducing "Design Thinking" in developing services. The participants showed a keen interest in the speaker's assertion that the problems faced by common Pakistanis can be solved by designing solutions so that every aspect of human experience is properly handled.

Ahmed Rafay Alam, Advocate High Court and Adjunct Faculty at LUMS, also spoke on the occasion. He linked usability with democracy and asserted that a usable and well-designed transportation infrastructure is a key step towards realizing a truly democratic society. A city that is good for children, the elderly, the handicapped and the poor is good for everyone. Using aerial pictures of DHA Lahore and the unorganized "Charar Pind" in the midst of an organized infrastructure, Ahmed emphasized the need to design for all members of society.

The airline industry was the focus for Ahmed Shuja, CEO and User Experience Consultant at Obscure Interactive. His presentation included a pictorial study of airport and airplane infrastructure and discussed issues regarding ergonomics and human factors. Ahmed brought contrasting examples of both local and foreign airports and highlighted design issues in airplane seats, in-flight entertainment system placement, airport lobbies and airport information tion technology in travel, and signage related to transportation in Pakistan. The World Usability Day celebrations kicked off with a welcome note and introduction to the Interaction Design Center (IxDC) by Imran Hussain. IxDC is an interdisciplinary center that undertakes education, research, development, outreach, training, and consulting activities with the aim of making business services and interactive digital products accessible and easy-to-use. Imran briefly explained the importance of creating customer experiences through approaches such as 'Experience Design', 'Design Thinking', and 'User-Centered Design' (UCD). In addition, he also outlined the main focus areas of IxDC which include Experience Strategy, Service Design, User Research, Search Engine Optimization, Information Architecture, Interaction Design, User-Interface Design, and Usability Testing, amongst others.

Ian Ruskin, well known marketing expert, sharing his views with the participants of the semina

The highlight of the event was a video presentation by Lalit Katragadda, the creator of Google Map Maker, live from Google campus in Banglore, India. This was Google's first ever video conferenced seminar in Pakistan. Google Map Maker allows people to contribute, share and edit map information from certain regions around the world including Pakistan. Lalit showed a time-lapse video of users from Pakistan filling a blank Lahore map with details of roads, turnabouts, points of interest, and business and educational institutions. The participants posed follow-up questions and were enlightened by the possibilities of having a web-based, user-moderated map for all the cities of Pakistan. Badar display systems. Imran Hussain also presented a usability study on National Highway Authority's e-Tag system and service design. He highlighted the issues with the service design including the non-availability of educational material outside the motorway network, the e-Tag lane being blocked with cones on the motorway toll plaza and the difficult user experience in using e-Tag multimedia kiosks at motorway service areas.

In addition to the above, there were other very interesting and diverse talks. Ian Ruskin Brown, the Chief Guest for the event and well-known marketing expert, took a deeper stance on usability by highlighting the need to design products and services so that they are not only easy-to-use, but also interesting and rich in experience. Ayesha Ghuffar, MS student at UMT, presented a research paper on "The impact of bus stop location and usage on traffic flow in Lahore"; Professor Dr Tanvir Iqbal, Chairman Department of Transportation Engineering and Education at UET, provided the audience with details of academic opportunities in the field of transportation engineering which also includes transportation infrastructure and services. Qaiser Abbas from the City Traffic Police Lahore, made a presentation on safety and security issues related to transportation.

In the end, the participants exchanged views and expressed their satisfaction at being part of such a unique event. This was the first time that members from the Pakistani design and usability community got a chance to get together and share ideas. We certainly hope that will not be the last and more events of this kind will be organized in the future.

Dr Faheem Uddin presents paper at International Conference in India

An International Conference on Technical Textiles and Non-wovens (ICTN 2008) was held on November 11-13, 2008 at the Indian Institute of Technology (IIT), Delhi with the support of several top level public and private sector organizations in textiles and scientific disciplines. The conference invited research and development papers in technical textiles from experts around the world including UK, USA, Austria, Germany, Italy, India, Hungary and Pakistan. There were 30 papers from industry participants and 26 papers from academic institutions, research organizations, consultants and Government of India participants.

Dr Faheem Uddin, Chairman Department of Textiles, School of Science and Technology (SST) at UMT participated in the ICTN 2008. He presented his paper on 'clay, nanoclay and montmorillonite minerals'. The paper highlighted clay product development for technical textiles and identified the utilization of locally (i.e. Pakistani) available clay minerals in technical textiles. The paper presentation was perceived as a way forward for indigenous product development.

Currently, technical textiles have significant higher growth rate relative to the home and fashion oriented textiles. The present market worth of technical textiles is valued at US $ 115 billion and is expected to rise to US $ 127 billion by the year 2010. The significance of any development in this field cannot be over-emphasized. We congratulate Dr Faheem Uddin on presenting his paper at this international forum and hope that his contribution will go a long way in the advancement of technical textiles.

Lecture: Globalization and the future of the Muslim World

Peter Oborne, political columnist and writer, Daily Mail, UK delivered a lecture on "Globalization and the future of the Muslim World" on November 5, 2008. He was of the view that there were many similarities between people of different regions and religions and added that there was a lot to be learned from Islam.

A question and answer session was later held followed by a speech by Dr Hasan Sohaib Murad, Rector UMT. The Rector said that problems of the Muslims could be solved if a change was generated from within. The lecture was attended by a large number of students and UMT officials including A G Ghaffari, Director Events, Forums and Publishing (EFP), Asif Saeed Haider, Controller of Examinations, and Dr Abul Hameed, Director, School of Professional Advancement (SPA).

Lecture: Ancient Greek philosophy from pre-Socratic to post-Aristotelian

The Department of Social Sciences at the School of Social Sciences and Humanities (SSH) invited renowned teacher and academician Professor Attiya Syed, to speak on 'Ancient Greek Philosophy from pre-Socratic to post-Aristotelian' on November 25, 2008. Professor Attiya has served as the Head of Department and Dean of Humanities at Lahore College for Women University (LCWU), and has dedicated her life towards developing the education system

The lecture focused on ancient Greek philosophy. The speaker was of the view that Greek philosophers changed the way we viewed the world and their thoughts and ideas were now considered the precursors of modern science. She observed that western civilization was largely based on Greece's powerful political and social thought, classical art and scientific outlook. She encouraged the students to ask questions related to the subject and this made the session very interactive.

Dr Abdul Hameed, Head, Department of Social Sciences, gave the concluding remarks and expressed his gratitude to the respected speaker. It is very important to expose our students to the thoughts and philosophical insights of distinguished personalities from the academic world and one hopes that more lectures of this kind will be arranged in the future also

What is advertising? Why we do it?

Is it to tell the people about your product/service/idea?

If the answer is yes then it is something that anyone with common sense can do. Once you have told the people about your product, what do you expect them to do; buy it? Why? Why should they buy it? You know a lot of products but you do not buy all of them. You do not buy a product because, you simply do not need it, or you prefer another product on it, or you cannot afford to buy it, or you want to know more before buying it, etc. There can be one thousand reasons for not buying a product. So, that means telling someone about your product is not enough and you cannot sell it unless you remove all of the rea-sons that can stop people from buying it. This is what advertising is all about. Let's take a look at one of its generally acceptable definitions.

"Advertising is a paid non-personal communication from an identified sponsor using mass media to persuade or influence an audience.'

Leaving the part, "a paid non-personal communication from an identified sponsor using mass media", which tells the nature and boundaries of advertising, I will discuss the part that tells us its purpose "to persuade or influence an audience."

The key point to start any effective advertising campaign is 'an audience'. The advertiser must define and understand the product's soft and hard features, target customer profile, and their preferred feelings that should be stimulated to persuade or influence them. Unfortunately, most of the ads are made to please the seller and the interests of the buyer (target audience also known as target market) are forgotten which kills the very spirit of an other interment. an advertisement.

Advertising is a very sensitive work that requires a lot of specialized knowledge, profes-sional skill, and field experience. A professional advertiser does not try to make an ad campaign to cater for everyone. By doing so, one may waste resources to persuade the wrong audience and by the time he realizes who the actual customer is, the resources might have already been exhausted.

The technical aspects of advertising are Market Research (if the market is new to the advertiser), Creative (concepts and their actualization), and Media Planning and Buying (placement of the creative output). A campaign canon be effective if the advertiser is not duly qualified to integrate all these phases and to interact with the people involved. He duly qualified to integrate all these phases and to interact with the people involved. He sees the big picture and knows who's to do what before whom. When such a job is handed over to amateur people, they start building an empire without making a sound foundation of considering the customers' ways of thinking, the factors that motivate them, and the environment in which they live. They do not understand where to involve an illustrator and where to involve a photographer. Moreover, they do blind copy of previously suc-cessful ads which is the surest way to produce boredom. Yesterday's discoveries are today's common places; and daringly fresh images soon becomes stale by repetition, and lose their emotive appeal.

Once you know your audience well, you design the message. Here comes the creative section. The creative of your campaign also depicts the goals of your campaign. Some typical goals may include heightening the brand awareness, creating a favorable image, ttitude change and increasing the sales, etc.

sage can be in printed form, digital, vocal, or motion picture, or in all of such forms. Whatever form it is in, besides the information it contains, it should satisfy the customers' respective senses. Only in this way can we make an ad that works as more than an announcement and influence the customers.

The media vehicles we use for placement of our designed message(s) are taken care of in the 'media planning and buying' section. Some of the media vehicles that address the masses are Newspapers, Billboards, Websites, AM and FM radio stations, and terrestrial and satellite TV channels. For local advertising, handbills, posters, and private cable TV channels are also useful. While buying media (say buying time on TV Channels) what-ever discounted rates you get i fyour message (TV Commercial) is not aired on the right day, on the right channel and in the right time slot, you will be wasting your money even tag, on the right ways and in the right three right, you work ways good money forch if you have speet billions on your campaign. At the end of the day it is not the cheap buy-ing cost that will win you the game, it's in fact the planning, creativity, and timing that will win you the game. Another important thing to keep in mind is that awareness of the advertised message soars up quickly, and then begins to fall after six to eight weeks. This where the creative execution comes, as modification or rotation can keep the message fresh and noticeable.

In short, advertising is a very sensitive issue. Due to its glamorous nature, every organization tries to poke his/her nose in it. But if such a job is handed over to amateur people it can demolish the whole image of the product which might not be corrected due to the unbearable correction cost. In the absence of an in house creative department, outsourcing an advertising agency is a wise choice. Once you select an ad agency on the basis of their profile (previous work) it is better to trust their recommendations as long as they do not contradict with your goals.

People working on the conventional patterns for several years might not accept new tools and techniques, but those who have vision and know the impact of media penetration are updating their processes. Educated people with the latest knowledge of advertising know the need of integrating the talent of arts and business administration and bringing in the processes led by strategic plans for respective target segments. If their mentors accom-modate them, they can bring pleasant changes. We hope that the future of our advertising in terms of quality and effectiveness will be safer and brighter. But it all depends on how a generation welcomes the other at the change of the guard.
